

Kolkata, formerly Calcutta, is known for its colonial architecture, cultural festivals, and intellectual heritage. The city is a hub for arts, literature, and cinema, with landmarks like the Howrah Bridge, Victoria Memorial, and Indian Museum. Kolkata's street food, especially 'pani puri' and 'kathi rolls', is famous.

Delhi, the capital of India, is a blend of ancient and modern cultures. It houses historical landmarks like the Red Fort, Qutub Minar, and India Gate. The city is also a political and cultural hub, with bustling markets, delicious food, and a diverse population. Its vibrant nightlife attracts both locals and tourists.

Hyderabad is famous for its rich history, diverse culture, and modern tech industry. Known for its biryani, pearls, and the Charminar, Hyderabad blends traditional and contemporary architecture. The city is also a growing IT hub, with landmarks like the Golkonda Fort and Hussain Sagar Lake. It attracts visitors from around the world.